

LIBERTARIAN U.S. SENATE CANDIDATE
BUCKLEY CALLS ENERGY POSITIONS OF SAXBY CHAMBLISS “CRAZY”

Atlanta, Georgia – June 20, 2008

On a “You Tube” video recently released by the campaign of Saxby Chambliss, Mr. Chambliss says that the Democrats are to blame for high gas prices. He says that gas was $2.33 per gallon when Harry Reid and Nancy Pelosi came to power. He failed to note that the Bush Administration was in power and he was in office at that time.

In April, Mr. Chambliss co-sponsored a bill to provide a fuel tax holiday from May 26, 2008 to September 1, 2008. The only make-up source of funding for roads and mass transit in the bill was the General Fund-the same General Fund that the Republicans borrowed $1,500,000,000,000 to fund the federal government from 2001 through 2006. In other words, the lost revenue would come from more debt.

Allen Buckley the Libertarian Party’s candidate for U.S. Senate, said: “The ‘You Tube’ statement of Saxby Chambliss that the Democrats are to blame for sky-rocketing gasoline prices is crazy. It’s as crazy as his proposal to eliminate the gas tax for the summer was fiscally irresponsible. If elected, I shall propose fiscally responsible legislation providing incentives for hydrogen and other clean-burning fuels to free our country from oil dependency.”

Mr. Buckley’s website is www.buckleyforsenate.com. He can be reached for comment at (404) 962-1042.